

Technology Will Change the Way We Learn

Emerging technologies are transforming the way we work. New sets of skills are in demand, and the way we learn needs to keep up. We surveyed 3,800 business leaders globally to discover how workforce education is evolving.

Business leaders are split on whether their employees will learn on the job with AR/VR.

Prepare Your Business for the Future

The leaders surveyed are united in the need to transform, and provided tips on how proactive businesses can prep their workforce for 2030:

79%

Business leaders recommend teaching all employees how to code and understand software development.

85%

Companies suggest aligning compensation, training and KPIs to a company's digital goals and strategy, giving employees an economic incentive to learn skills for the future.

54%

Many companies are already providing digital training for all their staff members.

49%

Business leaders encourage peer learning across generations of workers.